1a.3 Summary of Evidence of High Impact (Provide epidemiologic or resource use data):

COPD is the third leading cause of death in America, claiming the lives of 124,477 Americans in 2007.¹ In 2008, 13.1 million U.S. adults (aged 18 and over) were estimated to have COPD.² However, close to 24 million U.S. adults have evidence of impaired lung function, indicating an under diagnosis of COPD.³ An estimated 672,000 hospital discharges were reported in 2006; a discharge rate of 22.5 per 100,000 population. COPD is an important cause of hospitalization in our aged population. Approximately 64% of discharges were in the 65 years and older population in 2006.⁴ A Lung Association survey revealed that half of all COPD patients (51%) say their condition limits their ability to work. It also limits them in normal physical exertion (70%), household chores (56%), social activities (53%), sleeping (50%) and family activities (46%).⁵ In 2010, the cost to the nation for COPD was projected to be approximately $49.9 billion, including $29.5 billion in direct health care expenditures, $8.0 billion in indirect morbidity costs and $12.4 billion in indirect mortality costs.^{6,7}

1b. Opportunity for Improvement: H M L I

(There is a demonstrated performance gap - variability or overall less than optimal performance)

1b.1 Briefly explain the benefits (improvements in quality) envisioned by use of this measure:

The use of long acting bronchodilators in patients with evidence of poorly controlled COPD (as evidenced by the recent exacerbations), is expected to reduce exacerbations and improve symptom control to a greater degree compared with short-acting bronchodilator agents alone.

1b.2 Summary of Data Demonstrating Performance Gap (Variation or overall less than optimal performance across providers):

[For Maintenance – Descriptive statistics for performance results for this measure - distribution of scores for measured entities by quartile/decile, mean, median, SD, min, max, etc.]

There is limited published data on performance gaps regarding the use of long acting bronchodilators in poorly controlled COPD. ActiveHealth benchmark data has demonstrated that gaps can be detected. Our 2011 data identified that 24 percent of patients with poorly controlled COPD and experiencing exacerbations, were not being prescribed long-acting bronchodilators in the past 1 year.

A cross-sectional study designed to assess attitudes and barriers to COPD guideline usage by surveying 500 primary care physicians found that only 25.8% reported adherence to guidelines related to long-acting bronchodilator (LABD) use in COPD patients. This demonstrates a significant opportunity for performance improvement in the use of LABDs in COPD.

1b.4 Summary of Data on Disparities by Population Group: [For Maintenance – Descriptive statistics for performance results for this measure by population group]

There is no available data on disparities by population groups on the use of bronchodilators in COPD.

There is evidence on racial disparities in prevalence of COPD. Because the popularity of cigarette smoking increased later among women and African Americans than in white men, rates of COPD among these groups have risen more recently. Although in several years before 1995 the rate of COPD among whites was higher than among African Americans, more recently there has been no difference between the two groups. In the early 1980s hospitalization rates for COPD were higher among whites than African Americans; however, since 1987 rates have been similar reflecting a decline among whites and an increase among blacks. Throughout the period, rates of emergency room care for COPD were higher among African Americans than whites, whereas the reverse was true for rates of physician office visits. It is not clear whether this disparity results from self-selection or socioeconomic barriers to access to care among blacks.

Similarly, there is evidence on racial disparities in treatment of COPD, in the application of smoking cessation programs, home oxygen use, and influenza vaccination. African Americans are less likely than Caucasians to receive smoking cessation advice from their physicians. Amongst patients with COPD, there is evidence to indicate that African Americans get influenza vaccination less frequently than Caucasians. Similarly, African Americans are less likely to receive ambulatory oxygen therapy than their white counterparts.

1c.1 Structure-Process-Outcome Relationship (Briefly state the measure focus, e.g., health outcome, intermediate clinical outcome, process, structure; then identify the appropriate links, e.g., structure-process-health outcome; process- health outcome; intermediate clinical outcome-health outcome):

Process measure

"Process-health outcome" relationship

Our process measure is focused on measuring the number of poorly controlled COPD patients who have been prescribed long acting bronchodilator therapy. Treatment with long acting bronchodilator therapy should result in improvement of the clinical outcome of decreased exacerbations, decreased emergency room and hospital visits associated with acute COPD exacerbations and ultimately decreasing morbidity rates of COPD patients.

1c.2-3 Type of Evidence (Check all that apply):

Clinical Practice Guideline, Selected individual studies (rather than entire body of evidence)

1c.4 Directness of Evidence to the Specified Measure (State the central topic, population, and outcomes addressed in the body of evidence and identify any differences from the measure focus and measure target population):

Evidence from quoted studies shows that the use of long acting bronchodilator agents in stable COPD, when compared with placebo and short acting bronchodilators, lowers the rate of exacerbations. There is also evidence of lowered rate of hospitalizations with the use of these agents, and improved health related quality of life.

Our measure focuses on the use of long acting bronchodilators in patients with COPD and evidence of recent exacerbations, who are being treated with only short acting bronchodilators. The use of long acting bronchodilators in these patients is expected to improve symptom control and reduce the rate of exacerbations.

1c.5 Quantity of Studies in the Body of Evidence (Total number of studies, not articles): A systematic review published in 2007 included 8 meta-analyses and 42 RCTs, and was used in the development of the guidelines (Ann Intern Med. 2007;147:639-53.). This review found that monotherapies with inhaled long-acting beta 2 agonists and a long acting anticholinergic were similar in efficacy, and superior to placebo and short acting anti-cholinergics in reducing exacerbations.

One head-to-head RCT compared tiotropium and ipratropium for the management of stable COPD.

4 RCTs compared ipratropium with long acting beta 2 agonists (LABA).

17 RCTs compared LABA with placebo. 4 RCTs compared tiotropium with placebo. 4 RCTs compared ipratropium with placebo.

1c.6 Quality of Body of Evidence (Summarize the certainty or confidence in the estimates of benefits and harms to patients across studies in the body of evidence resulting from study factors. Please address: a) study design/flaws; b) directness/indirectness of the evidence to this measure (e.g., interventions, comparisons, outcomes assessed, population included in the evidence); and c) imprecision/wide confidence intervals due to few patients or events): A systematic review published in 2007 included 8 meta-analyses and 42 RCTs, and was used in the development of the guidelines (Ann Intern Med. 2007;147:639-53.). This review found that monotherapies with inhaled long-acting beta 2 agonists and a long acting anticholinergic were similar in efficacy, and superior to placebo and short acting anti-cholinergics in reducing exacerbations.

In a head-to-head trial comparing tiotropium and ipratropium for the management of stable COPD, it was found that tiotropium was superior to ipratropium in reducing the number of exacerbations and the time to the first exacerbation, and significantly increased the time to first hospitalization for COPD. The relative risk for having at least 1 exacerbation was 0.77 with tiotropium (CI: 0.62 – 0.95). There was significant symptomatic improvement with the use of tiotropium as well, as evidenced by improved Transition Dyspnea Index focal score, and the St George's Respiratory Questionnaire. (Eur Respir J. 2002 Feb;19(2):209-16). This is a good quality study that provides clear evidence for the superiority of tiotropium compared to ipratropium. Furthermore, 4 RCTs comparing tiotropium with placebo showed a significant benefit (RR 0.84: CI 0.78-0.90). 4 RCTs that compared ipratropium with placebo failed to show a significant net benefit (RR 0.95: CI 0.78 – 1.15). This further solidifies our confidence in the superiority of tiotropium compared with ipratropium.

4 RCTs compared ipratropium with long acting beta 2 agonists (LABA), and the relative risk for 1 exacerbation was 0.89 (0.72 – 1.10), with a trend for greater benefit with LABAs compared to ipratropium. Although this net result was not statistically significant,

17 RCTs that compared LABA with placebo found a significant benefit with LABA compared to placebo (RR 0.87: CI 0.82 – 0.93). 4 RCTs that compared ipratropium with placebo failed to show a significant net benefit (RR 0.95: CI 0.78 – 1.15). This adds confidence to the conclusion that LABAs are more effective than ipratropium in reducing exacerbations in stable COPD.

The review includes RCTs and meta-analyses. The quality of the studies included was assessed based on allocation concealment, blinding, intention to treat analysis, length of follow up, loss to follow up, and funding source. Detailed quality assessments of individual studies included in the review are available in the appendix of the referenced review (Ann Intern Med. 2007;147:639-53).

Concealment of treatment allocation for inhaled therapies was adequate in 17 studies. All trials were double-blind, and nearly all used intention-to-treat analyses. Several included only participants who were taking at least 1 dose or who had 1 valid post baseline measurement or excluded participants because of noneligibility after randomization or good practice or ethics violations by individual study sites. All but 7 studies were funded by pharmaceutical companies. All trials had adequate participant follow-up (80%). Six trials lasted 3 years or longer. Almost all COPD treatment trials involved participants who were prone to exacerbations, had previous diagnoses of COPD, had disabling respiratory symptoms, had mean FEV1 less than 50% predicted, and used inhaled therapies. Only 4 RCTs used population-based recruitment and enrolled participants similar to those likely to be identified by spirometric case finding of "at-risk" individuals, although some trials provided additional analysis according to spirometric status.

1c.7 Consistency of Results across Studies (Summarize the consistency of the magnitude and direction of the effect): The results were fairly consistent from study to study, with acceptable variation in magnitude of effect from study to study.

1c.8 Net Benefit (Provide estimates of effect for benefit/outcome; identify harms addressed and estimates of effect; and net benefit - benefit over harms):

A systematic review published in 2007 included 8 meta-analyses and 42 RCTs, and was used in the development of the guidelines (Ann Intern Med. 2007;147:639-53.). This review found that monotherapies with inhaled long-acting beta 2 agonists and a long acting anticholinergic were similar in efficacy, and superior to placebo and short acting anti-cholinergics in reducing exacerbations.

In a head-to-head trial comparing tiotropium and ipratropium for the management of stable COPD, it was found that tiotropium was superior to ipratropium in reducing the number of exacerbations and the time to the first exacerbation, and significantly increased the time to first hospitalization for COPD. The relative risk for having at least 1 exacerbation was 0.77 with tiotropium (CI: 0.62 – 0.95). There was significant symptomatic improvement with the use of tiotropium as well, as evidenced by improved Transition Dyspnea Index focal score, and the St George's Respiratory Questionnaire. (Eur Respir J. 2002 Feb;19(2):209-16)

4 RCTs compared ipratropium with long acting beta 2 agonists (LABA), and the relative risk for 1 exacerbation was 0.89 (0.72 – 1.10), with a significant trend for greater benefit with LABAs compared to ipratropium. 17 RCTs that compared LABA with placebo found a significant benefit with LABA compared to placebo (RR 0.87: CI 0.82 – 0.93). 4 RCTs comparing tiotropium with placebo showed a significant benefit (RR 0.84: CI 0.78-0.90). 4 RCTs that compared ipratropium with placebo failed to show a significant net benefit (RR 0.95: CI 0.78 – 1.15).

The most common specific adverse effects of tiotropium were dry mouth, occurring in 10.3% of participants (relative risk, 4.4 [CI, 2.2 to 8.8] vs. placebo), and urine retention (odds ratio, 2.5 [CI, 0.5 to 14] vs. placebo). Respiratory infections and pneumonia were similar with long-acting beta 2-agonists and with placebo. A meta-analysis of 20 RCTs assessed the cardiovascular effects of inhaled beta 2-agonists (primarily salmeterol and formoterol) in patients with asthma or COPD. Beta 2-Agonists were associated with an increase in cardiovascular events compared with placebo (2.7% vs. 0.7%). Of these events, 87% were due to sinus tachycardia. Major cardiovascular events were higher compared with placebo, although they did not statistically differ (relative risk, 1.66 [CI, 0.76 to 3.60]). Another pooled analysis concluded that respiratory deaths increased with long-acting beta 2-agonists and decreased with anticholinergics. However, their conclusions were based on very few events; were not verified in our review of the published primary literature; included findings from duplicate publications; and did not incorporate the TORCH study, which found no difference in deaths due to pulmonary causes between placebo and salmeterol (5% in each group).

2a1.33 Level of Analysis (Check the levels of analysis for which the measure is specified and tested): Clinician : Group/Practice, Clinician : Individual, Facility, Health Plan, Integrated Delivery System, Population : County or City, Population : National, Population : Regional, Population : State

2a1.34-35 Care Setting (Check all the settings for which the measure is specified and tested): Ambulatory Care : Clinic/Urgent Care, Ambulatory Care : Clinician Office, Home Health, Post Acute/Long Term Care Facility : Nursing Home/Skilled Nursing Facility, Post Acute/Long Term Care Facility : Rehabilitation

2a2. Reliability Testing. (Reliability testing was conducted with appropriate method, scope, and adequate demonstration of reliability)

2a2.1 Data/Sample (Description of the data or sample including number of measured entities; number of patients; dates of data; if a sample, characteristics of the entities included):

All the data for the measures are obtained from electronic sources. Based on the client, we take in administrative claims data, pharmacy-based management systems, laboratory systems, personal health records, health risk assessments, and electronic health records. In addition, we use data from care management systems. All data feeds are electronic and do not require manual medical chart abstraction.

We have over 20 million patient records in our database, consisting of data from provider organizations, hospital systems, healthcare plans, and Medicare and Medicaid. The mean age of the population is 37, range is between 12 and 77 years of age, and 51% of the population is female.

We tested the reliability of the data of 279,666 members from a major health plan. The average age of the population was 35 years and 52 percent were female.

Data abstraction was performed in 2011.

2a2.2 Analytic Method (Describe method of reliability testing & rationale):

All of our quality measures are electronic and all of the data used to support the measures are electronic. In addition, we receive the data by electronic feeds. We have internal processes to ensure that we receive valid codes and where appropriate the associated values. Our analytic process includes testing a new rule or algorithm on our test database, so that we can be sure of the reliability of the codes.

At the end of the test, we randomly select patients who are either in the numerator, or in the denominator but not the numerator, and review their individual electronic data to ensure that they met the requirements of the rule. As a part of our reliability testing, we check to ensure that we have found the correct people in the denominator or the numerator, across multiple rules with similar definitions. To ensure accuracy, we check a subset of the people who were not in the numerator to ensure that we were accurate in not counting them in the numerator. If we find errors at any stage of the reliability testing, e.g., similar denominators that had significant differences in counts, different compliance rates for similar populations; we update the rules and retest.

2a2.3 Testing Results (Reliability statistics, assessment of adequacy in the context of norms for the test conducted):

Below are the descriptive statistics of the data sources for the test population:

1. The proportion of patients within each client group with diagnosis/procedure claims in the last 365 days was: median 53% (IQR = 10%).

2. The proportion of patients within each client group with at least 1 prescription in the last 365 days was: median 81% (IQR = 8%).

3. The proportion of patients within each client group with lab results in the last 365 days was: median 46% (IQR = 12%).

2b. VALIDITY. Validity, including all Threats to Validity: H M L I

2b1.1 Describe how the measure specifications (measure focus, target population, and exclusions) are consistent with the evidence cited in support of the measure focus (criterion 1c) and identify any differences from the evidence:

Evidence from quoted studies shows that monotherapies with inhaled long-acting beta 2 agonists and a long acting anticholinergic were similar in efficacy, and superior to placebo and short acting anti-cholinergics in reducing exacerbations.

Our measure focuses on the use of long acting bronchodilators in patients with evidence of poorly controlled COPD, as evidenced by the recent exacerbations, is expected to reduce exacerbations and improve symptom control to a greater degree compared with short-acting bronchodilator agents alone. We excluded the patients who had a lung transplant in the past 3 years because the diagnosis of COPD may no longer apply to them and a new baseline of lung function would need to be established.

Our measure is consistent with the evidence provided.

2b2. Validity Testing. (Validity testing was conducted with appropriate method, scope, and adequate demonstration of validity.)

2b2.1 Data/Sample (Description of the data or sample including number of measured entities; number of patients; dates of data; if a sample, characteristics of the entities included:)

All the data for the measures are obtained from electronic sources. Based on the client, we take in administrative claims data, pharmacy-based management systems, laboratory systems, personal health records, health risk assessments, and electronic health records. In addition, we use data from care management systems. All data feeds are electronic and do not require manual medical chart abstraction.

We have over 20 million patient records in our database, consisting of data from provider organizations, hospital systems, healthcare plans, and Medicare and Medicaid. The mean age of the population is 37, range is between 12 and 77 years of age, and 51% of the population is female.

We tested the validity of the data of 279,666 members from a major health plan. The average age of the population was 35 years and 52 percent were female.

Data abstraction was performed in 2011.

2b2.2 Analytic Method (Describe method of validity testing and rationale; if face validity, describe systematic assessment:)

All of our quality measures are electronic and all the data used to support the measures are electronic. In addition, we receive the data by electronic feeds. We have internal processes to ensure that we receive valid codes and where appropriate the associated values. Our analytic process includes testing a new rule or algorithm on the standard data set so that we can be sure of the reliability of the code. At the end of the test, we randomly select patients who are either in the numerator, or in the denominator but not the numerator, to ensure that they met the requirements of the rule. As a part of our validity testing, we check to ensure we have found the correct people in the denominator or the numerator. To ensure accuracy, we manually review the electronic data of a subset of the people who were not in the numerator to ensure that we were accurate in not counting them in the numerator. If we find errors at any stage,, then we update the rules and retest.

Further, to ensure that we obtain valid results once the measures are deployed, when we run the measure for a client we evaluate the results to ensure they are consistent with what we have found in the past for the client and across our book of business.

2b2.3 Testing Results (Statistical results, assessment of adequacy in the context of norms for the test conducted; if face validity, describe results of systematic assessment:)

The algorithms and code sets used for the measures are all electronic. Once we test the rules, the results are reviewed by our clinical research and development committee, composed of physicians of varying specialties, pharmacists, and nurses. After the rules are deployed in a production environment for our clients, the rule is considered reliable, i.e., we have found the appropriate people in the denominator and numerator.

POTENTIAL THREATS TO VALIDITY. (All potential threats to validity were appropriately tested with adequate results.)

2b3. Measure Exclusions. (Exclusions were supported by the clinical evidence in 1c or appropriately tested with results demonstrating the need to specify them.)

2b3.1 Data/Sample for analysis of exclusions (Description of the data or sample including number of measured entities; number of patients; dates of data; if a sample, characteristics of the entities included:)

We have over 20 million patient records in our database, consisting of data from provider organizations, hospital systems, healthcare plans, and Medicare and Medicaid. The mean age of the population is 37, range is between 12 and 77 years of age, and 51% of the population is female.

We tested the exclusion criteria of the measure on a population of 279,666 members from a major health plan. The average age of the population was 35 years and 52 percent were female.

Data abstraction was performed in 2011.

2b3.2 Analytic Method (Describe type of analysis and rationale for examining exclusions, including exclusion related to patient preference):

We exclude those patients who have had a lung transplantation in the past 3 years. Our exclusions are tested and analyzed using the same methodology as for our numerator and denominator.

We do not perform statistical analysis of our exclusions. We manually review our electronic process to ensure accuracy of our exclusions.

2b4. Risk Adjustment Strategy. (For outcome measures, adjustment for differences in case mix (severity) across measured entities was appropriately tested with adequate results)

2b4.1 Data/Sample (Description of the data or sample including number of measured entities; number of patients; dates of data; if a sample, characteristics of the entities included):

This specific measure addresses all adult patients with poorly controlled COPD patients across the entire measured population. Using our highly specific rule algorithms, all adult patients with poorly controlled COPD who were prescribed only a short acting bronchodilator will be included in the denominator. Therefore, no risk adjustment for risk stratification is necessary for this unique measure.

2b4.2 Analytic Method (Describe methods and rationale for development and testing of risk model or risk stratification including selection of factors/variables):

This specific measure addresses all adult patients with poorly controlled COPD patients across the entire measured population. Using our highly specific rule algorithms, all adult patients with poorly controlled COPD who were prescribed only a short acting bronchodilator will be included in the denominator. Therefore, no risk adjustment for risk stratification is necessary for this unique measure.

2b4.3 Testing Results (Statistical risk model: Provide quantitative assessment of relative contribution of model risk factors; risk model performance metrics including cross-validation discrimination and calibration statistics, calibration curve and risk decile plot, and assessment of adequacy in the context of norms for risk models. Risk stratification: Provide quantitative assessment of relationship of risk factors to the outcome and differences in outcomes among the strata):

This specific measure addresses all adult patients with poorly controlled COPD patients across the entire measured population. Using our highly specific rule algorithms, all adult patients with poorly controlled COPD who were prescribed only a short acting bronchodilator will be included in the denominator. Therefore, no risk adjustment for risk stratification is necessary for this unique measure.

2b4.4 If outcome or resource use measure is not risk adjusted, provide rationale and analyses to justify lack of adjustment: This specific measure addresses all adult patients with poorly controlled COPD patients across the entire measured population. Using our highly specific rule algorithms, all adult patients with poorly controlled COPD who were prescribed only a short acting bronchodilator will be included in the denominator. Therefore, no risk adjustment for risk stratification is necessary for this unique measure.

2b5. Identification of Meaningful Differences in Performance. (The performance measure scores were appropriately analyzed and discriminated meaningful differences in quality)

2b5.1 Data/Sample (Description of the data or sample including number of measured entities; number of patients; dates of data; if a sample, characteristics of the entities included):

We have over 20 million patient records in our database, consisting of data from provider organizations, hospital systems, healthcare plans, and Medicare and Medicaid. The mean age of the population is 37, range is between 12 and 77 years of age, and 51% of the population is female.

From this population 8657 patients fulfilled the denominator criteria, and the compliance rate was 76%. Data abstraction was performed in 2011.

2b5.2 Analytic Method (Describe methods and rationale to identify statistically significant and practically/meaningfully differences in performance):

Our ability to analyze measures across different populations is limited by the characteristics of a specific client population. Since the rules are electronic, they are applied consistently, independent of the population characteristics. For example running this measure on a young population, may result in a lower denominator and compliance rate, compared to evaluating the measure across an older population.

All of our quality measures are electronic and all the data used to support the measures are electronic. In addition, we receive the data by electronic feeds. We have internal processes to ensure that we receive valid codes and where appropriate the associated values. Our analytic process includes testing a new rule or algorithm on our test database, so that we can be sure of the reliability of the code. At the end of the test, we randomly select patients who are either in the numerator, or in the denominator but not the numerator, to ensure that they met the requirements of the rule. As a part of our reliability testing, we check to ensure we have found the correct people in the denominator or the numerator, across multiple rules with similar definitions. To ensure accuracy, we check a subset of the people who were not in the numerator to ensure that we were accurate in not counting them in the numerator. If we find errors at any stage of the reliability testing, e.g., similar denominators that had significant differences in counts, different compliance rates for similar populations; we update the rules and retest.

2b5.3 Results (Provide measure performance results/scores, e.g., distribution by quartile, mean, median, SD, etc.; identification of statistically significant and meaningfully differences in performance):

Measure Performance Results across 106 client populations for this measure (N=8657)

10th percentile – 63%

25th percentile – 72%

50th percentile – 77%

75th percentile – 83%

90th percentile - 100%

Inter Quartile Range – 12%

2b6. Comparability of Multiple Data Sources/Methods. (If specified for more than one data source, the various approaches result in comparable scores.)

2b6.1 Data/Sample (Describe the data or sample including number of measured entities; number of patients; dates of data; if a sample, characteristics of the entities included):

We receive electronic data from multiple sources – health plan, electronic health record, personal health record, etc. Independent of the sources, all the available data about a patient are aggregated into a single patient record for use in performance measurement. Therefore, for an individual patient the record may include claims data, clinical data from an electronic health record, or self-reported data from a patient health record. Based on this, we do not typically conduct analyses based on disparate sources of data. Instead, the rules contain redundancies to accommodate the different sources of data or the absence of specific data based on the source. Therefore, this measure has not been compared across data sources.

2b6.2 Analytic Method (Describe methods and rationale for testing comparability of scores produced by the different data sources specified in the measure):

We ingest data from multiple sources (e.g., diagnosis, procedure, lab, pharmacy claims, clinical data, patient derived data, provider feedback). Using a complex and highly specific rule algorithm, we are able to ensure that the various data sources are appropriately weighted, based on the consensus of our clinical research and development committee. Therefore, this measure has not been compared across data sources.

2b6.3 Testing Results (Provide statistical results, e.g., correlation statistics, comparison of rankings; assessment of adequacy in the context of norms for the test conducted):

This measure has not been compared across data sources.

2c. Disparities in Care: H M L I NA (If applicable, the measure specifications allow identification of disparities.)

2c.1 If measure is stratified for disparities, provide stratified results (Scores by stratified categories/cohorts): This measure applies to all patients with poorly controlled COPD and is not stratified for disparities.

2c.2 If disparities have been reported/identified (e.g., in 1b), but measure is not specified to detect disparities, please explain:

There is evidence on racial disparities in prevalence of COPD. Our goal with this specific measure is to identify those providers who have prescribed an inhaler to all of their COPD patients regardless of age, sex, race, or socioeconomic status.

2.1-2.3 Supplemental Testing Methodology Information:

Steering Committee: Overall, was the criterion, Scientific Acceptability of Measure Properties, met?

(Reliability and Validity must be rated moderate or high) Yes No

Provide rationale based on specific subcriteria:

If the Committee votes No, STOP

3. USABILITY

Extent to which intended audiences (e.g., consumers, purchasers, providers, policy makers) can understand the results of the measure and are likely to find them useful for decision making. (evaluation criteria)

C.1 Intended Purpose/ Use (Check all the purposes and/or uses for which the measure is intended): Public Reporting, Quality Improvement (Internal to the specific organization)

3.1 Current Use (Check all that apply: for any that are checked, provide the specific program information in the following questions): Public Reporting, Quality Improvement (Internal to the specific organization)

3a. Usefulness for Public Reporting: H M L I

(The measure is meaningful, understandable and useful for public reporting.)

3a.1. Use in Public Reporting - disclosure of performance results to the public at large (If used in a public reporting program, provide name of program(s), locations, Web page URL(s). If not publicly reported in a national or community program, state the reason AND plans to achieve public reporting, potential reporting programs or commitments, and timeline, e.g., within 3 years of endorsement: [For Maintenance – If not publicly reported, describe progress made toward achieving disclosure of performance results to the public at large and expected date for public reporting; provide rationale why continued endorsement should be considered.])

Our measure specifications including numerator, denominator, and exclusion descriptions, algorithms, and code sets will be publicly available at the following URL address: www.activehealth.com/nqf-measures-with-articles

The results of each measure are client specific. Due to the private nature of these results, we leave it to each client's individual discretion to release their results publicly.

3a.2. Provide a rationale for why the measure performance results are meaningful, understandable, and useful for public reporting. If usefulness was demonstrated (e.g., focus group, cognitive testing), describe the data, method, and results: The use of long acting bronchodilators in patients with evidence of poorly controlled COPD (as evidenced by the recent exacerbations), is expected to reduce exacerbations and improve symptom control to a greater degree compared with short-acting bronchodilator agents alone.

A cross-sectional study designed to assess attitudes and barriers to COPD guideline usage by surveying 500 primary care physicians found that only 25.8% reported adherence to guidelines related to long-acting bronchodilator (LABD) use in COPD patients. This demonstrates a significant opportunity for performance improvement in the use of LABDs in COPD.

Even by using our highly specific rule algorithms which look for evidence of a RECENT exacerbation of COPD symptoms, our 2011 data identified that 24 percent of patients with poorly controlled COPD who experienced exacerbations, were not prescribed long-acting bronchodilators in the past 1 year.

Our process measure is focused on measuring the number of poorly controlled COPD patients who have been prescribed long acting bronchodilator therapy. Treatment with long acting bronchodilator therapy should result in improvement of the clinical outcome of decreased exacerbations, decreased emergency room and hospital visits associated with acute COPD exacerbations and ultimately decreasing morbidity rates of COPD patients.

3.2 Use for other Accountability Functions (payment, certification, accreditation). If used in a public accountability program, provide name of program(s), locations, Web page URL(s): We do not use our measures for other accountability functions at this time.

3b. Usefulness for Quality Improvement: H M L I

(The measure is meaningful, understandable and useful for quality improvement.)

3b.1. Use in QI. If used in quality improvement program, provide name of program(s), locations, Web page URL(s):

[For Maintenance – If not used for QI, indicate the reasons and describe progress toward using performance results for improvement].

This measure is used in quality improvement programs internal to a specific organization, e.g., our individual clients. Our clients are able to use our measure performance results to increase awareness and improve compliance.

3b.2. Provide rationale for why the measure performance results are meaningful, understandable, and useful for quality improvement. If usefulness was demonstrated (e.g., QI initiative), describe the data, method and results:

The use of long acting bronchodilators in patients with evidence of poorly controlled COPD (as evidenced by the recent exacerbations), is expected to reduce exacerbations and improve symptom control to a greater degree compared with short-acting bronchodilator agents alone.

A cross-sectional study designed to assess attitudes and barriers to COPD guideline usage by surveying 500 primary care physicians found that only 25.8% reported adherence to guidelines related to long-acting bronchodilator (LABD) use in COPD patients. This demonstrates a significant opportunity for performance improvement in the use of LABDs in COPD.

Even by using our highly specific rule algorithms which look for evidence of a RECENT exacerbation of COPD symptoms, our 2011 data identified that 24 percent of patients with poorly controlled COPD who experienced exacerbations, were not prescribed long-acting bronchodilators in the past 1 year.

Our process measure is focused on measuring the number of poorly controlled COPD patients who have been prescribed long acting bronchodilator therapy. Treatment with long acting bronchodilator therapy should result in improvement of the clinical outcome of decreased exacerbations, decreased emergency room and hospital visits associated with acute COPD exacerbations and ultimately decreasing morbidity rates of COPD patients.

Overall, to what extent was the criterion, Usability, met? H M L I

Provide rationale based on specific subcriteria:

4. FEASIBILITY

Extent to which the required data are readily available, retrievable without undue burden, and can be implemented for performance measurement. (evaluation criteria)

4a. Data Generated as a Byproduct of Care Processes: H M L I

4a.1-2 How are the data elements needed to compute measure scores generated? (Check all that apply).

Data used in the measure are:

generated by and used by healthcare personnel during the provision of care, e.g., blood pressure, lab value, medical condition, Coded by someone other than person obtaining original information (e.g., DRG, ICD-9 codes on claims), Other We are able to ingest and process self-reported patient data, data from disease management programs, and data from providers.

4b. Electronic Sources: H M L I

4b.1 Are the data elements needed for the measure as specified available electronically (Elements that are needed to compute measure scores are in defined, computer-readable fields): ALL data elements are in a combination of electronic sources

4b.2 If ALL data elements are not from electronic sources, specify a credible, near-term path to electronic capture, OR provide a rationale for using other than electronic sources:

4c. Susceptibility to Inaccuracies, Errors, or Unintended Consequences: H M L I

4c.1 Identify susceptibility to inaccuracies, errors, or unintended consequences of the measurement identified during testing and/or operational use and strategies to prevent, minimize, or detect. If audited, provide results:

We use a combination of data sources to mitigate the risk of inaccuracies or errors. We recognize that generally, electronic data have inherent errors and inaccuracies related to incorrect coding, or missing data, which can result in less specificity in the definition of the denominator and /or the numerator. To minimize these errors and inaccuracies, we use clinically enriched data (laboratory results, medication lists) to augment the data. In addition, where possible, we corroborate the data. For example, to confirm a patient has diabetes, we not only confirm the presence of an ICD-9 code for diabetes from claims, we also substantiate this finding with the presence of diabetic medications. We have a mechanism in place to solicit feedback from providers via a feedback form, if they detect errors with the measure.

We do not anticipate significant unintended consequences from the implementation of this measure. Our measures are all developed from evidence-based literature or from clinical practice guidelines and are designed to encourage appropriate care of the patient.

4d. Data Collection Strategy/Implementation: H M L I

A.2 Please check if either of the following apply (regarding proprietary measures): Proprietary measure

4d.1 Describe what you have learned/modified as a result of testing and/or operational use of the measure regarding data collection, availability of data, missing data, timing and frequency of data collection, sampling, patient confidentiality, time and cost of data collection, other feasibility/implementation issues (e.g., fees for use of proprietary measures):

Providers prefer to have a mechanism to provide feedback, and that our algorithms minimize the risk of false positives.

Consequently, we allow the ingest of provider feedback in our rule algorithms, which err on the side of specificity. We have also learned that we have to be flexible to take in data from all available sources.

Overall, to what extent was the criterion, Feasibility, met? H M L I

Provide rationale based on specific subcriteria:

OVERALL SUITABILITY FOR ENDORSEMENT

Does the measure meet all the NQF criteria for endorsement? Yes No

Rationale:

If the Committee votes No, STOP.

If the Committee votes Yes, the final recommendation is contingent on comparison to related and competing measures.

5. COMPARISON TO RELATED AND COMPETING MEASURES

If a measure meets the above criteria and there are endorsed or new related measures (either the same measure focus or the same target population) or competing measures (both the same measure focus and the same target population), the measures are compared to address harmonization and/or selection of the best measure before a final recommendation is made.

5.1 If there are related measures (either same measure focus or target population) or competing measures (both the same measure focus and same target population), list the NQF # and title of all related and/or competing measures:

0102 : COPD: inhaled bronchodilator therapy

0549 : Pharmacotherapy Management of COPD Exacerbation (PCE)

5a. Harmonization

5a.1 If this measure has EITHER the same measure focus OR the same target population as NQF-endorsed measure(s): Are the measure specifications completely harmonized? No

5a.2 If the measure specifications are not completely harmonized, identify the differences, rationale, and impact on interpretability and data collection burden:

While NQF Measure 0102 addresses the same condition (COPD), it addresses the basic need for COPD patients to have at least an inhaled bronchodilator. Our measure specifically concentrates on the further management of those COPD patients who are poorly controlled and are already taking an inhaled bronchodilator, thereby on the next level of treatment of symptoms. NQF Measure 0549 addresses those COPD patients in the hospital or who have been seen in the ED and are 40 years of age and older, and who have been dispensed a systemic corticosteroid within 14 days of the event and dispensed a bronchodilator within 30 days of the event. Our measure, on the other hand, addresses the need for further treatment in all adults with a diagnosis of COPD, regardless of care setting, who are already on therapy and continue to experience COPD exacerbations.

5b. Competing Measure(s)

5b.1 If this measure has both the same measure focus and the same target population as NQF-endorsed measure(s): Describe why this measure is superior to competing measures (e.g., a more valid or efficient way to measure quality); OR provide a rationale for the additive value of endorsing an additional measure. (Provide analyses when possible):

This measure does not have both the same target population and the same measure focus as any other NQF-endorsed measure.
